

Temple Elfande Temple Lane, Capel Dorking RH5 5HJ

welcome to

Temple Elfande Temple Lane, Capel Dorking

Set within 2.7 acres of beautifully landscaped gardens in the picturesque countryside of Capel, this exceptional eight-bedroom detached Grade II listed Tudor manor house offers a rare opportunity to own a remarkable piece of British history. Dating back to the 13th century, the property was once home to the Knights Templar and later, in the mid-15th century, to Sir William Cowper, Chancellor to King Henry VIII, who transformed the house and grounds into the impressive residence enjoyed today.

Unusually for a Tudor property, the house boasts generously high ceilings throughout—approximately 2.8 metres—creating an exceptional sense of space and light rarely found in period homes of this era. Modern comforts blend discreetly with its heritage, including LPG central heating throughout and a traditional AGA that anchors the heart of the home. Further features include a wine cellar running beneath the house and a substantial detached five-car garage with extensive loft storage, making it particularly appealing to car enthusiasts or larger families.
